The Conservatism of Odd Fellowship.

[Extract from an Address Delivered by Col. John N Staples, before Buena Vista Lodge, of Greensboro, April 26, 1879.]

Odd Fellowship is eminently conservative in its character. It has a platform broad enough, wide enough and strong enough to contain all the religions of the world. It is non political; "loyalty to party" is no qualification for membership. It is non sectional; birth and residence are no barriers to the bestowal of its honors, and the enjoyment of its preferments. It is strictly and absolutely free from all entangling alliances. It stands aloof from matters and things which do not pertain to its essential principles of organization, within the limits of its own laws and customs. It goes to extremes in nothing; it occupies a middle ground.

The god of war had deluged this land with blood; his chariot wheels of fire had rolled across the Southern States, and our fairest cities and most fertile fields lay in splendid ruin and fearful desolation in the burning track, where wealth and plenty abounded; honesty, abject and imperious, reigned supreme, old age, youth and beauty alike, were the victims of its pestilence. The lamentations of mothers, sisters and maidens went up from every home and fireside; life was a burden, and death a welcome visitor.

Throughout this Republic there arose amid the shouts of victory the awful wailings of bereaved and broken hearts. The bravest men in the land lay shrouded in the gay trappings of battle, upon the tented field, as sacrifices upon their country's altar. Sectional feeling and national discord ran riot everywhere. All the bitterness of aggression on the one side, all the resentment of defeat and disappointed hopes on the other, were brought into active operation. Political ambition, fired by the inflammatory influences of conquest and of power, seized the reins of government; and the despotism of force, born of success in arms, shaped the policy of the predominant faction. But, amid this commotion which racked the nation to its center, amid this desolation and wo which made every hamlet in the land a house of mourning; amid the graves of America's best and bravest men, while yet the smoke of battle rested upon the hard-fought field, there came a voice from the North to the South—not in the thunders of battle nor in the lightnings of the storm, not in the rumblings of the earthquake nor in the roarings of the sea, not in the fury of the whirlwind nor in the screams of the tempest—but a soft, sweet, gentle voice, such as the one which fell upon the ears of the prophet upon the heights of Horeb: "We are brethren bound together by the golden cord of Friendship, Love and Truth; come, let meet together as of old, in the temples of our fathers, and worship again at the shrine of a fraternity united in Peace, undivided and indivisible in War: come, let us feed the hungry, clothe the naked, visit the sick, relieve the destitute, comfort those who mourn, bury the dead, and provide for the widows and orphans." What a grand, what a sublime, what a glorious exhibition of true fraternity and conservatism is given to the world in that brief, but far-reaching proclamation of the Hon. Isaac M. Veitch, Grand Sire of Odd Fellows, made on the 24th day of May, 1865, inviting the South back to the vacant chairs in the Grand Lodge of the United States. Hear the conclusion of it.

"In the hope that our brotherhood may come forth from the severe ordeal to which it has been subjected, unscathed and reinvigorated by its trials, and that its great heart may ever vibrate in unison with the teachings of charity, I await with confidence a prompt and cordial response from every jurisdiction, answering all who accept this affectionate invitation that a fraternal greeting awaits them on the occasion of our grand annual communication."

Before fraternal ambassadors had gone forth from the church, before the rights of the States had been recognized by the Federal Government, before swift-winged commerce had returned to her channels, the sublime teachings of that fraternal feeling which must ever exist in a perfect Union, is presented to the contemplation of statesmen and patriots as the most princely gift ever bestowed upon a country cursed with civil war. It is an example worthy of imitation. It is a movement to the glory of Odd Fellowship more durable than stone, more beautiful than brass, more desirable than the trophies of a kingdom.

TAKING THE CENSUS.

HOW THE CHIEF OF THE BUREAU PROPOSES TO DO IT.

The Old Methods to be Greatly Improved Upon---The Statistics to be More Complete than ever Before.

Washington Post.

General Francis A. Walker, chief of the National Census Bureau, has made answer to certain interrogatories in relation to the Census, which is mainly given below:

"What arrangements have you made for taking the census General."

"The census of the coming year," will be taken different from the ones preceding, owing mainly, to the fact that the law gives authority to appoint special agents, and we expect, through this means, to deal with subjects of which it has been found impossible to obtain accurate or even approximate statistics, through the usual system of going from house to house."

"Have you taken any action under this authority, as yet?"

"I have proceeded in the appointment of some experts and special agents to take up the special subjects, such as manufacturing, agriculture, mining, fishing and other interests, and have instituted a number of such inquiries throughout the country as will materially assist in the work during the present year."

"Will these special agents work independent of the mortality and vitality statistics?"

"Yes; it is of some importance to the public to know that this part of the census will not begin until next year. The Census Day is June 1, 1880, when the population all over the country will be counted. The enumerators, as they are technically called, will begin on that day and proceed until the counting is finishing."

"How will deaths and births occurring between the 1st of June and the time the enumerators get around, be regarded?"

"Persons who were alive June 1, and died before the collector's visit will not be put in the census. Births subsequent to the 1st of June similarly will not be taken. The object is to get the correct statistics up to June 1st which is the last of the census. The law requires certain commercial and other statistics for the twelve months ending that date, for the collection of which an improved process has been adopted. Whenever we find that the facts can be obtained better from time to time, they are taken as we go along, instead of running the risk of losing them by waiting until the end of the period."

"Will the death statistics be collected on and after June 1, 1880, as the population is computed?"

"No; the deaths will be taken from day to day. Heretofore the return of deaths only embraced sixty to seventy per cent. of the actual rate. We are now making an effort to get them as they occur all over the country."

"How do you expect to accomplish it?"

"We have sent out 60,000 blank reports to physicians throughout the country, asking them to report the deaths coming to their knowledge together with the types of disease and many other interesting statistics which would not be obtained otherwise. These reports will be returned at the end of the year, and will be compared with the figures of the enumerators."

"How will you collect other statistics?"

"Well, the fishery statistics, for instance, have heretofore been collected by sending around to see how many were caught, but they were incomplete, and nearly worthless. Our census of 1860 or 1870, did not exhibit ten per cent. of the actual fishing statistics. We have a number of officers in the field at the present time, proceeding from port to port, along the coast, as certaining the number of men and vessels engaged in the industry, as well as statistics of the markets and all the importants facts relating to fisheries in their economical aspects. Professor Goode, of the United States commission, is the officer in charge of this department."

"At what points are your special agents operating?"

"We have men on the great lakes and Florida coast especially, and are confident that the statistics obtained will be of very high social and economical value."

"Regarding mining statistics, General, how will they be secured?"

"The figures relating to mining interests haye always been scandalous; utterly below the facts, and worthless. The new law also gives us authority to to employ special agents and experts in this department."

"We already have parties in the general field, and some more visiting every mine. They are obtaining facts not only referring to the annual production, but also pertaining to the social and economical interests requisite to mining people, the method of conducting the mines, etc."

"Now for manufacturing industries?"

"The 'new' method has also been adopted in many branches of manufacture, and the appointments made to cover those of cotton, iron and woolen goods. Preparations are also being made to canvass the other most important manufactures by means of experts. Instead of the enumerators collecting the statistics in their own districts as heretofore, special agents will perform the service In all large cities especially, the enumerators will be relieved of manufacturing statistics, and some competent man will be designated for each of certain great branches. The general or minor manufacturers will be taken by the enumerators, who will also obtain the statistics of petty manufacturers in the interior."

"Speaking of the rural sections, how will agricultural statistics be secured?"

"It would not pay to employ special agents to take agricultural figures, and this duty will be trusted to the enumerators. This is a wide field. There are probably 3,000,000 farmers in this country, and you will see the objection to employing especial assistants when the ground can be covered as well by the regular force."

"Is education a class of itself?"

"It comes under the branch of 'social statistics,' which embraces education, churches, schools, libraries, newspapers, wages, wealth, debt and taxation."

"A most important branch."

"Yes, and it will be collected almost entirely through special agency, as will also vital statistics, pauperism, crime, insanity, idiocy and deaf-muteism."

"How have they been collected before?"

"By enumerators, or else by deputies of the United States marshals in the several districts."

"What force will be necessary, and when will it be selected?"

"There will be 150 supervisors, one or more to each State, according to its size. The supervisors' districts will be formed and announced about the middle of October, and the appointments will probably be made at the meeting of Congress in December. In January the supervisors will appoint the enumerators. The special agents will be selected as necessity requires."

"How many enumerators will be required?"

"I suppose about 15,000 to 20,000, and those in the country will be required to complete their labors during the month of June, 1880. Those in the city are confined to the first two weeks of the same month. The reports will come in as rapidly as completed."

There has been no organization of the census bureau as yet. A clerical force of sixteen males and nine females is employed at present in copying, sending out circulars, etc., and additions will be made from time to time as required.

FORSYTHE COUNTY.

WINSTON, August 15.—The weather is now warm and rainy, giving us a desirable season. The Inferior Court closed Wednesday night. The public meeting was quite interesting, Mr. McNeill, of Eastern Carolina was introduced. He stood forth in home made clothes, and would impress an audience as being anything else than a speaker; but knowing him to be a Scotchman from his name, we pinned our faith to him. He made one of the finest addresses we have heard for months, full of historical facts, poetic quotations and sound sense. He was loudly applauded and a fine impression.

Rev. Mr. Battle, of Charlotte was next introduced. He made a good address and told some rich anecdotes. Among which were a "cat story and a jug story," that were hard to get round. Brother Broughton, of your city, delivered a fine and well termed address as we ever heard on the subject, and it was well received as it well merited applause.

Dr. Buie addressed the audience on the effect of alcohol on the human system. It was very interesting and highly instructive.

On Thursday night Mr. Ball, of Greensboro, delivered a very learned and instructive as well as entertaining and forcible address. Rev. Mr. Pepper also gave the audience a fine address.

The workings of the lodge while here have been very harmonious and pleasant, and will doubtless result in great good. All the delegates and members seem much encouraged and enthused, and will, we imagine, enter the field with renewed vigor.

Mr. Whitaker, of your city, reached here Wednesday night, and Thursday he and Mr. Broughton clasped hands in token of the unanimity and future cooperation, if not union, of the two orders. We trust that they may be the means of much good in our State.

CATAWBA.

HICKORY, August 15.—The weather is variable—rain every day or so. Night is assuming somewhat of an autumnal breath. Fire now and then is comfortable in the early morn. Crop prospects continue flattering, and a country more blessed than this in all that contributes to true happiness cannot be found.

"Breathes there a man with soul"—

Oh, you don't want poetry.

Well, trade is improving considerably. As I write (1 o'clock, p. m.), one of our mercantile firms is busy packing goods to be shipped into Rutherford county, via Marion.

The matured crops of the country are coming in rapidly and being sold at good prices. If any reader of the NEWS should be living in famine, let him come to the Egypt of North Carolina.

Quite an accident occurred on the Western Road this morning. The western bound train took on the Morehead City and eastern excursionists at Salisbury, making quite a number of cars, and all densely crowded. As the train was nearing the summit of the Blue Ridge, and this side of the tunnel in which the work is progressing, it collided with several flat cars, which were running down the mountain at great speed (estimated at 60 miles per hour). These flats were loaded with rock, and had in some way become detached at the works, and running down the heavy grade as they were, distance but gave them greater speed. So great indeed was the force with which they were running, that all effort made by a number of persons at various points to stop them by obstructing the track was of no avail. Only the Western bound train with its freight of human souls could offer any effectual resistance, and about one-half mile down the mountain east of the tunnels from whence the flats were loosed, the trains collided. Fortunately for those on board, the engine withstood the shock, though I understand it is a perfect wreck. Captain B. A. Newland, the conductor, was at the time riding with the engineer and is seriously hurt, being completely covered with the stone and timbers of the wreck. His wounds though serious are thought not dangerous. The colored fireman on the engine it is said is fatally injured. Captain Charles Gordon, engineer, escaped with only a slight wound on the face. None of the passengers or excursionists were hnrt save a few bruises such as must follow so great a shock. As the trains collided, a portion of the passenger coaches became detached and started with great speed toward Henry Station, but with great presence of mind some of the passengers vigorously applied the brakes and brought the coaches to a halt. Two rumors are afloat as to how the flats became detached at the tunnel. One that some of the convicts did it with the the hope of escaping thereon. Another that some person out of idle curiosty, but by accident detached them.

Our town is full of visitors, and still they come. Seymour W. Whiting, one of the noblest young men of your city is visiting his sisters who reside here.

The man who stands at the head of the most gigantic enterprise in North Carolina, W. T. Blackwell, Esq., has been here. How wonderful that a business of so gigantic proportion as that of the manufacture of "Durham smoking tobacco" is the success of only a few years. Such is the fruit of well directed energy, and thus it comes that Blackwell, with his "Durham Bull" points as fine a moral as is done by the "historic ox" of Webster's spelling book, which is "Be sure you're right then go ahead.

Dr. E. O. Elliot hopes soon to have his road engine running from this place to Sparkling Catawba Springs. W. L.

YADKIN COLLEGE, August 14.—The weather is somewhat cloudy, but no rain. Trade is gradually growing better, dried fruit is coming in, and business seems lively.

Magistrates perform more marriage ceremonies than preachers. They don't charge.

Students are coming in from every direction. Yadkin College will open to-day.

The tax valuation of real estate in Yadkin College township is about $7 per acre upon an average.

The town of Yadkin College is steadily and certainly building up. New buildings are in progress all the time. The prospects are good for a college chapel soon, 40 by 100 feet, and three stories high. S.

MRS. SPRAGUE'S STORY.

THE RECENT AFFAIR AT NARRAGANSETT PIER.

Owing to a Complete Rupture Between Governor Sprague and the Trustee all Remittances Ceased.

Special to the News.

The letter which Mrs. Sprague wrote to a friend regarding the recent affair at Narragansett, and an extract from which was given to the Associated Press Thursday evening, has been obtained for the NEWS. The letter in full is as follows: "As you must have surmised, Governor Sprague's dissolute life and dissipated habits long ago interrupted our marital relations, though I have striven hard, through untold humiliation and pain, to hide from the world 'for my children's sake,' the true condition of a blighted, miserable domestic life. About a year ago even the poor semblance abruptly culminated after a disgraceful orgie and arrest at Nantasket Beach, with the circumstances of which many people in Rhode Island are not unfamiliar. I then sought, with my little girls, the neighborhood of old friends and the shelter of my honored father's former home. There, dwelling almost within the shadow of his tomb, I felt more secure, less unprotected. Here kindly sympathy sought me out, and, though covert malice pointed some censorious comments, relief came and our circumscribed means were adequate to our simple and quiet mode of life. Governor Sprague's irregularities having been visited upon him by the trustee administering his embarrassed estate, the contribution toward the maintenance of myself and children, without a word of explanation to me, was suddenly cut down to a palpably inadequate sum.

"Even this was remitted but for a few months. Then, owing to a complete rupture between Governor Sprague and the trustee, all remittances ceased, and for six months past no money has been contributed toward the maintenance of his family or household by Governor Sprague. In addition to greater wrongs, unpaid tradespeople to whom he was indebted have been urgent in their demands for payment, but he gave no heed to the indebtedness, even answering, when pressed by me to find a way to meet these just demands and relieve me of importunities, that 'I must look to my powerful Washington friends for aid, and to my deep distress and mortification, permitted, after a long delay, a bill for carriage hire for his mother's use during a visit to me in Washington to be paid by the gentleman who had recommended to us the stable from which the carriage was hired. This and other more unmanly exhibitions have been incidental to the past year, while the brutality of recent events repetitions of similar scenes of violence and outrage enacted in former years) has finally driven us from the door and filled the public prints of the country with a scandal too cruel to be endured without redress.

"Governor Sprague's causeless and shameful persecution of the children's teacher is literally true as he tells the story, the real animus being, as confessed, Governor Sprague's willingness to be subjected to the restraint at the table and in the household observances of the constant presence of a gentleman. The attempt to complicate Mr. Conkling with this matter is absurd. The two men never met—I believe have never seen each other. Gov. Sprague's indecent affront to the guests in the house was most gross and without excuse. Mr. Martin, whom I had met in a very precarious condition of health on route for Narragansett Pier, I induced to go to Canonchet for quiet and good nursing. He was removed under Governor Sprague's threats of "murder to be done," at the imminent risk of his life. Mr. Conkling was, of course, as unconscious as I that Governor Sprague sought occasion to enact the tragic role of the injured husband, for at their last meeting, not long since, Governor Sprague had sought from Mr. Conkling not only legal counsel, but accepted at his hands a favor such as only the friendliest confidence could warrant.

In his determination to overthrow Mr. Chafee as trustee, and hoping to gain forces with the creditor interest to drive him from his post. Governor Sprague had carried away from the counting-room of A. & W. Sprague the books of the Quidnick Company, refusing to return them. Mr. Chafee, in turn, refused, until these books were returned, to permit Governor Sprague to hold any business relations with the concern, and of course refused to permit him to draw any money.

"This was the situation of affairs which by coming to Rhode Island I had hoped, through some influence or other brought to bear on Governor Sprague, to help to set right and to secure by some means a maintenance for the four children, for whose wants and education I have been and am now bearing the undivided burden. A conference with counsel employed by the firm achieved no results. Professor Linck, under a contract with me for three months, was neither permitted to perform his duties nor paid and dismissed. We had no ostensible means for living at Canonchet without incurring additional indebtedness, to which I refused to be a party. In this awkward and painful dilemma I requested Mr. Conkling, who had already been consulted by Mr. Sprague, and upon whose judgment and advice I have safely relied in my own matters, to see Governor Sprague and try to ascertain what point there was in this proposed programme of opposition and what results were likely to follow that would benefit or provide for the children. Mr. Conkling stopped at Canonchet for this purpose, and was awaiting Governor Sprague's return to seek an interview with him when the now notorious outbreak occurred. If any hostile words were exchanged between Mr. Conkling and Governor Sprague at Canonchet they alone know what they were, for no one else heard them. What transpired in the village I do not know beyond what is reported in the sensational accounts given in the newspapers."

The Yahoos of Yazoo.

Brooklyn Eagle.

It had been hoped that the action of the irresponsible mob, which recently committed an unprovoked and inexcusable outrage in Yazoo county, Mississippi, would not be imitated in any other portion of that tumultuous State. The universal disgust inspired by that outrageous act, the reprobation which it received from self-respecting Democrats in Mississippi, and the plain and forcible denunciation of the Vicksburg Herald, we had thought would be sufficient to prevent the infection from spreading. But a dispatch printed Tuesday morning states that a somewhat similar experiment has been tried in Rankin county, where Major B. F. Sutton, an old and highly respected citizen of the county, has been ordered to withdraw from the local canvass and leave the county, and that this outrage was committed "by Democratic authority." Although this new style of bulldozing is disapproved by the masses and strongly condemned by both the Vicksburg papers, its continuance compels us to recur to it.

The Yazoo case was that of Captain Henry M. Dixon, who had always been a Democrat, and had stood high in the estimation of his Democratic fellow citizens. This year he had accepted the Independent nomination for sheriff, and expected to receive a large negro vote, but there was nothing to indicate a revival of race troubles. He was waited upon by an armed mob of five hundred men, under the command of Henry Stubblefield, Democratic candidate for sheriff, who were got together by a false pretense. The mob was reduced, by desertions of men who were ashamed to be seen in such a crowd, to three hundred, and Dixon's house was besieged. A redeeming feature of the affair was the action of J. H. Holt, Mayor of Yazoo city, and Democratic nominee for district attorney, who bravely confronted the mob with a gun in his hand, and declared that he would kill the first man who should attempt to cross Captain Dixon's threshold. The leader of the mob demanded that Dixon should leave the county, never to return. This he refused to do, but finally consented to withdraw from the canvass. The Independent movement, of which Captain Dixon was the leader, was supported by some of the best citizens of Yazoo county, and his friends addressed a letter to Hon. J. S. Morris, formerly attorney-general of Mississippi, asking his advice. Judge Morris, in his reply, referred to the pledges made by the Vicksburg convention last spring, and said that he could not believe that the Democratic leaders would quietly permit such an outrage to be consummated. The mob element, he said, exists to some extent in every community, and defies all laws, and he clearly explained the evils that would be brought upon the State if that element should be permitted to rule so ruinously. But Judge Morris could point to no remedy for the wrong, outside of public opinion.

One of the Independent candidates, writing an account of the affair to the Vicksburg Herald, used this language: "Our patriotic papers here are afraid to puolish such articles as this for fear it will ruin Democracy." The gentleman was surely ironical in referring to those papers as "patriotic." It is not the publication of such outrages that is calculated to injure Democracy, but their perpetration. They are sure to become known and published, and all attempts to cover them up only increase their evil effect. There seems to us to be good reason to believe that the bulldozing of Dixon was not the act of the Democratic party even of Yazoo county; yet the Yazoo Democrats become responsible for it unless they clearly condemn it. It appears to have been the work of the Democratic candidate for sheriff, who feared that he might be beaten by the Independent candidate, and wanted to get him out of his way. With this end in view, his brother having previously failed in an attempt to kill Dixon with a two pound weight, he collected a party of his friends and sought to drive his opponent out of the canvass. The gentleman above alluded to, as the correspondent of the Vicksburg Herald says: "I have learned that most of the mob were men who had not much to lose, and who did not care what might befall the country, provided they could beat Dixon and elect themselves and friends." Dixon and the rest of the Independents claimed to be Democrats, though acting temporarily outside of the organization, and the only politics involved in the affair were the personal politics of the Democratic candidate for sheriff. Neither the Democratic party, nor the South, nor even the State of Mississippi, can be held accountable for such an exhibition of mob violence, yet it is calculated to have a more or less injurious effect upon all three. That a mob is permitted to prevent a candidate from running for office anywhere, or upon any ticket, is such an indication of barbarism as must excite the disgust and detestation of all well regulated communities, without regard to party. The Rankin county outrage is doubtless of the same class, but may be even a greater affliction, in proving that the Yazoo mob has easily found an imitator. These outbreaks are local and only intended to influence candidates; but in their effects they are more or less national, and when such wrongs are committed in the name of Democracy they have a tendency to injure the Democratic party everywhere. We agree with Judge Morris that nothing but public opinion can prevent the spread of such a dangerous infection, and it seems probable that the Independents of Yazoo county may safely appeal to public opinion against a mob, in their own locality as well as elsewhere. They will vote for Captain Dixon in spite of his forced withdrawal, and it is to be hoped that they will elect him. The Yahoos of Yazoo and the rowdies of Rankin must be taught that mob methods cannot be allowed to control elections, and that they have no right to bring discredit upon the party which claims to be the especial advocate of equal rights, by committing crimes in its name.

Foreign Trade.

New York Public.

The official statement of foreign commerce for the fiscal year ending June 30th, proves more favorable than the estimates which we made a month ago. The excess of exports over imports for for the fiscal year is $264,636,602, against $257,814,234 for the fiscal year preceding. The official figures given elsewhere show that the increase of imports, the last fiscal year being compared with the one ending June 30, 1878, was $8,740,609, and the increase of domestic experts $17,625,683, the decrease of foreign exports being only $2,062,706. As to coin and bullion, the excess of exports is only $4,703,641, against $3,918,811 during the year preceding. But this statement, although highly satisfactory, does not warrant us in overlooking the fact that there has been a decrease of $19,000,000 to the balance in favor of this country during the first half of the year 1879.

During the month of June the domestic exports amounted to $44,352,800, against $45,427,210 in June, 1878. The foreign exports were only $709,573, against $1,067,688 in June last year. But the imports were $38,909,645, against $15,506,288 last year, so that the net result was an excess of only $6,152,728 in exports, against $21,228,610 last year.

The Crops.

Wilmington Star, 16th.

A gentleman of this city, who has just returned from a trip through portions of Bladen and Robeson county, says that the corn crop has suffered from the late drought to the extent probably, of about one-third of the expected yield. The rains came too late to be of any great advantage. Cotton, in most places he has visited, suffering more or less from rust, and the planters are fearful that it will considerably affect the yield.

MRS. JANE GREY SWISSHELM'S OPINION OF THE CASE.

She Loves Power! This Country Ruined by the Woman who Lives in Washington.

Chicago Tribune, 15th.

Little Kate Chase, when a mere child, was the head of her father's establishment, her own mother and two stepmothers having died before she was a dozen years old. She was a mere school girl when she presided at his reception when he was Governor of Ohio; was bright and beautiful and spoiled with adulation, with no mother to guide her. She was ambitious, and brave, and daring, and reckless, and haughty, and defiant; but always much beloved by her friends. She was often in trouble and the subject of gossip, and seemed to rely on her father to get her out of scrapes. Ohio, in those days, was away West; and Western girls generally defy Eastern ideas of propriety; so a large allowance should be made for her escapades on the tomboy theory.

Of course her father's political enemies were willing to believe the worst, but this is not easily reconciled with the idea of her being the mother of a large family of lovely children.

Since their removal to Washington the consuming desire of her life has been to be First Lady. In pursuance of this silly ambition she used to be rude to Mrs. Lincoln in demanding equality or precedence. It was to gain this, the great ambition of her life, that she urged her father into his candidacy for the Presidency and defeated the impeachment of President Johnson. While he was President, through her friendship with Mrs. Patterson, she shone at the White House; but had that stanch matron, Mrs. Wade, presided there, Kate must have taken a back seat. So, through profuse hospitality, pretty toilets, constant attendance in the gallery, and smiles, nods, scented notes, bouquets, and so on and so forth, she turned the scale and kept Mr. Johnson in place.

She loves power! This country is ruined by the women who live in Washington! All that men do, in elections, is to send dough for them to knead, and roll and pat, and put into shape. Kate Chase and Vinnie Ream were the two most successful molders of dough that I ever met in that city of unbaked bread. To be this, it was not necessary that they should be bad women. Nay, I should think it impossible they could have exerted the influence they did if they had been impure.

What was required was to be pretty and chatty, and cunning and captivating, and keep those booby men hopping about like the little ball under Signor Blitz's thimbles. It is not a game of vice so much as sleight of hand; or, at least, so it appeared to me; and I watched "their tricks and their manners" pretty closely. Men in authority like to be amused and flattered, and Mrs. Sprague is an adept in the art of amusing and flattering them.

The property left by her father had been confiscated by the taxes levied to meet the great Governor Shepherd steal, and she set her wits to work to get these taxes remitted. I think there was not a property-holder in the District of Columbia who would not have felt it just and right that his or her taxes should have been cut down at least one-half while they staggered under that load laid upon them by the open thefts of men high in place.

The United States Senate, no doubt, remitted the taxes on the old home of Judge Chase out of respect to his memory, and, no doubt, his daughter used her personal influence with Senator Conkling to induce him to act as the representative of herself and sisters in procuring that remission.

There is not necessarily any impropriety in his presenting the case, and even urging the passage of the measure as a personal favor to himself; that Mrs. Sprague did send bouquets and notes to his desk would seem to indicate that her mode of lobbying was of the most graceful, highly approved and innocent kind. Had her relations with Senator Conkling been criminal, they would scarcely have blossomed out into these public manifestations.

That very small pattern of a man, her husband, once proposed in the United States Senate to employ and pay lady clerks in the departments on the same plan that he did factory girls; and all the soul that he has must have been rattling around in his little body like a grain of mustard seed in a dry gourd, or he would have gone to Washington last winter on the first hint of scandal, and quietly notified Senator Conkling that he had rights at stake and children to protect.

The fact that Senator Conkling went openly to Sprague's house, taking his trunk, shows that Mr. Sprague had not given him reason to understand that he would not be welcome.

The whole affair seems like another instance of Kate's constitutional willfulness and habitual defiance of Mrs. Grundy.

For her father's sake, and that of her sisters and her children, and for the sake of truth and fair dealing, I trust that the most generous allowance will be made for her. She has, no doubt, been using Mr. Conkling to procure Government favor for herself and family, but this does not prove that she has been false to herself and broken her vows as a wife.

JANE GREY SWISSHELM.

Superstition.

New Berne Nut Shell.

We have always known that the colored race is superstitious, but we did not dream that the intelligent colored people in this section were as superstitous as their proceedings in the burial of Æsop Ferebee, the colored boy drowned in Trent river, a few days since, seems to indicate.

There is an excellent cemetery in James City, and instead of giving the drowned boy decent burial in that cemetery, we learn the body was drowned on the river shore, at a point called high water mark. On being asked why this was done an old colored citizen of James City replied that it was because the water would come from the river to the drowned boy, no matter where he was buried and they did not want all the graves in the cemetery flooded. He further stated, "as a fac," no matter how high the tide rises in all time to come, the water will not pass the point where reposes the last remains of Ferebee.

An Eating Negro.

...gton Press.

...e have been told of a monster in ...man form, who a short time ago, at the town of Leachville, in the lower part of this county, within the short time of three hours, devoured three watermelons, weighing forty pounds, five half pints of whisky, two dozen raw eggs and one quart of peanuts, and then was willing to bet on another belt. If this had not been witnessed by good men, who vouched for its ...uthfulness, we would have been inclined to doubt it.

DAILY NEWS

GEO. C. JORDAN, Editor and Prop'r.

SUNDAY, - - - - AUGUST 17, 1879.

THE New England girl certainly carries off the palm for originality. A young woman of Wallingford, Conn., was married the other evening, and while the festivities that followed the ceremony were at their height the bride eloped with one of her admirers who was among the guests.

C. A. BRIGGS, of Stafford county, Va., was struck in the left thigh by a minnie-ball, in October, 1864, being then in the Confederate service at Petersburg. Strange to relate the ball passed across the lower portion of the stomach and worked its way into the groin on the right side, from which place it was extracted on Wednesday.

THE testimony before the Wallace Committee, at Providence, R. I., last week, showed among other interesting facts that in Providence alone, 10,000 naturalized citizens are disfranchised, including all the Germans. Yet Rhode Island continues to have double the representation she is entitled to in Congress. Hundreds of Union veterans" are not allowed to vote at any election.

GOVERNOR TALBOT has declined to allow his name to be used by the Massachusetts Republicans as their candidate for Governor. It is probable that he will reconsider his determination, however, as prominent Republicans have remonstrated, and assert that they can only win a victory under his lead. The Republicans of Massachusetts are hard up for gubernatorial timber. Talbot finds gubernatorial duties not at all congenial.

THE party of negroes which has just passed through St. Louis on the way to Kansas differs essentially from any that has preceded it. While other companies of colored emigrants have had no help, and even met opposition from the whites of the section they left, this party was made up by merchants and planters of Mississippi, who organized an excursion at merely nominal rates in order that representative colored men might investigate the matter for themselves. The merchants and planters of course do this in the hope that the colored prospectors will find Kansas a very different sort of place from the promised land it has been pictured, and bring back reports which will discourage any further exodus. The white people show sound sense in this move, and it will not be strange if it prove the first serious check to the emigration movement.

WE furnish more of the Sprague matter to-day, and must honestly confess that from what has been published so far Mrs. Sprague's character is without stain. A very touchy and morbidly jealous husband is both one of the unhappiest of men and one of the most disagreeable with whom to live. By his conduct he confesses his own doubt of his command of the affections of his wife, and may bring her under suspicion which she does not deserve in the eyes of her acquaintances. He makes a fool of himself and throws doubt or ridicule on her, when she may be irreproachable except in his insane imagination, and it may never have occurred to anybody to dispute his marital rights or to win a share of the devotion which belongs to him in its entirety. Such a man is a nuisance, a fellow who insults his wife, and who deserves to forfeit both her respect and her esteem.

WE copy the following paragraph from one of General Tom Ewing's recent speeches. The old Union soldier hangs to the Constitution without warts on it:

We hear now the doctrine preached, unknown and unheard of heretofore in America, that there is no such thing as State rights. The Republican candidate for Lieutenant Governor characterized the cheers that went up at a Democratic meeting, composed very largely of soldiers, in Zanesville, where I was pleading for the reserved rights of the States, as the rebel yell. A man dare no longer, in the face of these double extra patriots, stand up for that form of government for which the best blood of the North was shed. [Applause.] Gentlemen, I repudiate and spurn this new-fangled loyalty. [Applause, and cries of 'Good! good'] As a Union soldier, proud of my service and unwilling to surrender one jot or tittle of the just results of the war, I denounce this effort to impair the reserved rights and liberties of the States as moral treason to the republic. [Loud applause.] The war was fought on the solemn pledge of the Crittenden resolutions, which passed Congress with scarce a dissenting vote, immediately before the first battle of Bull Run. What did those resolutions say the purpose of the war was? They said that it was a war not for the purpose of conquest or subjugation, but solely to preserve the Union, with all the liberty, equality and rights of the several States unimpaired. [Applause.] On the faith of that pledge was poured out every drop of patriotic blood she from Bull Run to Appomatox. The inspiration of that pledge raised all our armies; it was the soul of all. It glowed in every camp fire and thundered from every gun. It was our cloud by day, our pillar of fire by night. It was, under God, the power of the war, and bore aloft our flag after every defeat, and won us all our victories. [Applause.]

DEPARTING FEARS.

We have now reached the middle of August, the time when, if we are again to experience an extensive yellow fever epidemic, we should be likely to see the disease cropping out in different localities in the Mississippi Valley and giving indications of its coming virulence. It is too early to speak with confidence regarding the future, but the circumstance that since its first appearance, weeks ago, the plague has been confined to Memphis, and has sh[own] no signs of advancing thence or m[ade] an independent start in othe[r] and cities which last year w[ere] tated by it, affords reasonable [basis] for hoping and perhaps expecting that the present pestilence will work small havoc compared with that of 1878.

The New York Sun in a lengthy article canvasses the situation, and we make the following excerpts to show the real condition of affairs:

Memphis, however, has already suffered bitterly from the plague, which her own precautions and early warning, and the fears of her neighbors, have kept almost entirely within the limits as a beleaguered army kept to the walls of a fortified town, and to the end of last week three hundred and thirty cases were reported, and four date they have increased to above hundred, of which number about one-fourth have died. But this list by no means tells the whole or the main part of the suffering caused by the disease which so terrified the inhabitants that three-fourths of them have fled.

The poorer people, the ones most afflicted, must endure the hardships of Camp Mark and Camp Mathew, where it is estimated that twelve thousand people are gathered together. As a Memphis physician writes, while the rough and vagrant class may enjoy such a life, the modest and self-respecting poor, unable to disport themselves, as so many of the richer Memphis people are doing, at agreeable summer resorts, dread its unavoidable exposure and perhaps necessary neglect of the decencies of life scarcely less than they do the yellow fever itself. In such a time of social turnsoil and disorganization, the idle and greedy and careless are apt to have a better show than the quiet and most deserving of the community. One does not need to go to Memphis or its adjacent camps to appreciate the reality of the terrible picture Dr. Mitchell draws of the ruin caused in that unhappy city by the plague, which makes it shunned by its own citizens and dreaded by its neighbors. "Continue to urge the removal of unacclimated people to camp," telegraphs the Vice-President of the National Board of Health, himself safely housed at Washington.

Yet appalling as this suffering is which is taking place so late in the nineteenth century in a considerable and enterprising city of a civilized country, reminding one of the fearful devastations wrought by the plagues of the middle ages, it is not a circumstance to that which last year aroused the sympathy and charity of the whole country. It touches Memphis alone, and at this time even the fear of the approach of the pestilence has almost left the inhabitants of the Mississippi valley. Vicksburg has scarcely felt the disease, and at New Orleans, at the close of last week, the Sanitary Director reported that "no death from yellow fever occurred during the week; that no person had been taken sick with yellow fever for ten days past, and that no case of yellow fever, nor any suspicious cases exist. The city is enjoying the highest possible health." The general opinion of physicians most familiar with the disease, and who are quickest to discern the signs of an approaching epidemic, is that New Orleans will probably furnish only sporadic cases of yellow fever between now and the coming of frost, and that this will be as healthy a season as any the city has known in a non-epidemic year.

May the hopeful signs which now brighten the prospect for the people of the South continue to grow more brilliant and more unmistakable!

POLITICAL NOTES.

American eagles, from their cage in the Bank of England, will soon be flopping their wings in their native land. It is the wheat crop that tolls them over.—Cincinnati Commercial (Ind.)

The Ohio campaign is becoming painfully one-sided. Foster's election is conceded even by the Democratic leaders, the only question now agitating their minds being the probable size of his majority. Truckling to the Greenbackers doesn't pay in Ohio.—St. Louis Globe Democrat (Rep.)

Some of the Yazoo people passed a fearful resolution about the Vicksburg Herald the other day. So long as they content themselves with resolutions, and don't detail a squad to wait on us, and give us orders to leave our home, the damage won't be entirely irreparable.—Vicksburg Herald (Conservative.)

The control of the General Government by the South means nothing less than the domination of an inferior civilization over the superior. Aside from all considerations of ante-bellum or post-bellum issues, such government by Southern politicians could be only harmful to the best interests of the American people. This is the central fact of the situation.—(Iowa Davenport) Gazette (Rep.)

The State Fair.

Raleigh Observer, 16th.

The North Carolina Agricultural Society was organized in the Commons Hall of the Capitol on the 18th of October, 1852, delegates from twenty-one counties being present, the county of Wake sending twenty-four on the part of the Wake Agricultural Society. Captain J. S. Dancy, of Edgecombe, was its first President, and his successors have been the Hon. R. H. Smith, of Halifax, Hon. Kemp P. Battle, of Wake, and Colonel Thomas M. Holt, of Alamance, who fills the position to-day with the ability for which he has long been eminent.

The regularity and promptness with which the State Fairs have been held under the control of the Society, is attested by the fact that the approaching Fair, announced for October 13th, 14th, 15th, 16th, 17th and 18th next, will be the nineteenth in course since the organization, the interruptions incident to the war having left a blank of several years.

The early history of the Society includes the record of honorable service in the cause of agricultural improvement of such members as the Hon. William A. Graham, Hon. Asa Biggs, Hon. D. M. Barringer, Hon. Thomas Ruffin, Dr. Frederick Hill, Dr. Edward A. Crudup, William Eaton, Esq., Hon. A. W. Venable, General L. O'B. Branch, George W. Mordecai, Esq., Hon. Weldon N. Edwards, and other good and faithful North Carolinians who have gone to their reward. Many other names of eminent citizens in all portions of the State might be given, who are still upon the stage of action, who have never ceased to feel a deep interest in the prosperity of a Society which has become now, by more than a quarter of a century, an institution cherished and sustained by the people as second to none in its beneficent effects upon our material prosperity.

Ten years ago, upon the revival of the Fair, after the dark days of the war, and the years of complete monetary prostration which followed, a Raleigh journal remarked in joyful terms:

"The Fair is over; a new era has been inaugurated in North Carolina, and henceforth the recurrence of this season of joy will be hailed with emotions of pleasure. To say that the friends of the Fair are gratified at the success but feebly express the feelings of all who took part in reviving the Agricultural Society and the State Fair."

Since that period the Fair has been removed to new and spacious grounds, the former location having proved too small for the increasing demands of the people, large and costly buildings erected, and many improvements introduced for the comfort and entertainment of visitors. Its chief drawback has been the debt incurred by the balance unpaid in cost of new buildings and grounds. But we are glad to know that in spite of the enormous contraction and the monetary depression of several years past, the present officers have succeeded in making substantial payments annually since 1876, and the outlook for the future brightens with every year.

However illustrious the names which adorn its past may be, there have been no stronger, truer friends of the improvement of our State than the present President and Executive Committee. Many of them have paid hundreds and even thousands of dollars from their private resources to honor their personal paper given to aid the Society in the struggle to survive the panic and preserve its usefulness to the people. Of these Colonel Thomas M. Holt has been the brave and patriotic leader, and his services will never be forgotten by the farmers and mechanics of North Carolina.

Great credit is due to the enterprising merchants and public spirited citizens of Raleigh (not to mention their former donations) who, in addition, have given two thousand dollars this year to add to the premium list, which offers a total of $4,500, to be paid promptly in cash. The larger part of this is directly appropriated to the farmer and stock raiser, while the work of the ladies is not forgotten. A new road has been opened to the grounds at the expense of the Society, to add to the comfort of the public, and commodious stalls are being erected on the eastern side of the grounds for the display of live stock, where the public can examine the same conveniently. We learn that this change has infused new life into exhibitors of stock, for it's true that the former stalls were uncomfortable and well nigh inaccessible. The track has been improved, and a beginning made in planting shade trees. We are informed that advices from abroad are very favorable, and the Secretary is conducting a heavy correspondence with exhibitors and others interested.

The choice of a chief marshal is a happy one. We doubt not that Colonel Gorrell, the energetic mayor of our thriving sister town of Winston, will perform his task with intelligence and skill. His election is a compliment to the West, and to the important tobacco interest with which he is connected.

More than all, the State Fair is the great scene of reunion among our people. It is our annual festival, where the children of the Commonwealth come to greet one another, and to mutually advise and encourage each other, year by year.

From these friendly discussions have sprung some of the most important changes in our social condition, and our laws pertaining to agricultural pursuits. It has been a great blessing to our State. Let us go on to improve it and to widen its influence. No consideration of local gains should govern in this matter. It is the State Fair, and appeals to the pride of North Carolinians from Currituck to Cherokee. Do not wait for Raleigh to do all; do not wait for Wake county or her immediate neighbors to do all; but if North Carolina means to make her State Fair the first in the South, let her rally as one man to those who are laboring with devotion to render it our honor and pride. They are determined to win success, and we invoke the aid of our brethren of the press in a work so eminently worthy of their important help.

The Crimean War Song.

[Published by Request.]

"Give us a song," the soldier cried,
The outer trenches guarding,
While the heated guns of the camps allied,
Grew weary of bombarding.
The dark Redan, in silent scoff,
Lay grim and threatening under
Where the tawny mounds of the Malakoff
No longer belched its thunder.

There was a pause; the guardsman said,
"We storm the forts to-morrow,
Sing while we may; another day
Will bring enough of sorrow."
They sang of love, and not of fame,
Forgot was Britain's glory,
Each heart recalled a different name,
But all sang "Annie Laurie."

Voice after voice caught up the song,
Until its tender passion
Rose like an anthem rich and strong,
Their battle eve confession,
And as it spread from each to each
And still the strain grew louder,
Till something on the soldier's cheek
Washed off the stains of powder.

They lay along the batteries' side,
'Neath the smoking cannon;
Brave hearts from Severn and from Clyde,
And from the banks of Shannon.
Across the Euxine waters burn
The bloody sunset embers,
While the Crimean valleys learn
How English love remembers.

And once again, a fire of hell
Burst from the Russian quarters,
With scream of shot and burst of shell
And bellowing of the mortars.
And Irish Nora weeps for him
Her lover grim and gory,
And English Mary sighs for him
Who sang of "Annie Laurie."

Ah! soldier, to your honored rest,
With truth and valor bearing,
The bravest are the tenderest,
The loving are the daring.

The Tempting Chalice.

The tempter's voice is soft and sweet,
And with fine sentences replete;
But through his sly, invidious tongue
Full many an honest heart is wrung.

He says: "Do come with me and sup
The sparkling, fascinating cup;"
But many find beneath its foam
A blighted manhood, ruined home

Full many a youth, without a guide—
A loving mother at his side—
Is met by smiles that do cajole
And lead astray the trusting soul.

The Tempter comes with subtle pow'r,
And in some dark, unguarded hour,
Allures him on, and widely opes
A grave for all his dearest hopes!

Alone thro' life he then shall roam,
Without a friend, without a home;
Alone—no gleam from love's bright eye—
Alone to languish, pine and die!

Awhile he trembles on the brink,
Then reels and falls, alas! to sink
Where Mercy can no more impart
Sweet songs of Hope to cheer his heart!

Wicked for Clergymen.

"I believe it to be all wrong and even wicked for clergymen or other public men to be led into giving testimonials to quack doctors or vile stuffs called medicines, but when a really meritorious article made of valuable remedies known to all, that all physicians use and trust in daily, we should freely commend it. I therefore cheerfully and heartily commend Hop Bitters for the good they have done me and my friends, firmly believing they have no equal for family use. I will not be without them."

THE CENUINE

DR. C. McLANE'S

CELEBRATED

FOR THE CURE OF

Hepatitis, or Liver Complaint,

DYSPEPSIA AND SICK HEADACHE

Symptoms of a Diseased Liver.

PAIN in the right side, under the edge of the ribs, increases on pressure; sometimes the pain is in the left side; the patient is rarely able to lie on the left side, sometimes the pain is felt under the shoulder blade, and it frequently extends to the top of the shoulder, and is sometimes mistaken for rheumatism in the arm. The stomach is affected with loss of appetite and sickness; the bowels in general are costive, sometimes alternative with lax; the head is troubled with pain, accompanied with a dull, heavy sensation in the back part. There is generally a considerable loss of memory, accompanied with a painful sensation of having left undone something which ought to have been done. A slight, dry cough is sometimes an attendant. The patient complains of weariness and debility; he is easily startled, his feet are cold or burning, and he complains of a prickly sensation of the skin; his spirits are low; and although he is satisfied that exercise would be beneficial to him, yet he can scarcely summon up fortitude enough to try it. In fact, he distrusts every remedy. Several of the above symptoms attend the disease, but cases have occurred where few of them existed, yet examination of the body, after death, has shown the LIVER to have been extensively deranged.

AGUE AND FEVER

DR. C. McLANE'S LIVER PILLS, IN CASES OF AGUE AND FEVER, when taken with Quinine, are productive of the most happy results. No better cathartic can be used, preparatory to, or after taking Quinine. We would advise all who are afflicted with this disease to give them a FAIR TRIAL.

For all bilious derangements, and as a simple purgative, they are unequaled.

BEWARE OF IMITATIONS.

The genuine are never sugar coated. Every box has a red wax seal on the lid, with the impression DR. McLANE'S L[illegible]. The McLANE'S LIVER PILLS bear the signatures of C. McLANE and FLEMING BROS. on the wrappers.

Insist upon having the genuine DR. C. McLANE'S LIVER PILLS, prepared by Fleming Bros., of Pittsburgh, Pa., the market being full of imitations of the name McLane, spelled differently but same pronunciation.

If VEGETINE is taken regularly, according to directions, a certain and speedy cure will follow its use.

Faintness at the Stomach.

VEGETINE is not a stimulating bitters which creates a fictitious appetite, but a gentle tonic, which assists nature to restore the stomach to a healthy action.

Female Weakness.

VEGETINE acts directly upon the causes of these complaints. It invigorates and strengthens the whole system, acts upon the secretive organs and allays inflammation.

General Debility.

In this complaint the good effects of the VEGETINE are realized immediately after commencing so take it; as debility denotes deficiency of the blood, and VEGETINE acts directly upon the blood.

Vegetine is Sold by all Druggists.

A SPECIALTY.

Repairing Promptly and Carefully Done.

Talbott's Patent Spark Arrester.

THE INVENTION OF THE AGE.

Talbott's new Patent Spark Arrester is really the only perfect and reliable one, and is superseding all others in use. The great efficiency of this Arrester is attracting universal attention, and is being endorsed by the best mechanical engineers and insurance companies. Its prominent features are:

It does not destroy the draft.

It does not interfere with cleaning the tubes.

It will not choke up, and requires no cleaning.

It requires no direct dampers to be opened when raising steam (dampers being objectionable, as they may be left open and allow sparks to escape.)

It requires no water to extinguish sparks, which, by condensation, destroys the draft. Besides, when water is used, if neglected, the efficiency is destroyed by evaporation of the water, and the boiler is kept in a filthy condition.

It is simple and durable, and can be relied upon.

It can be attached to any boiler.

No planter should be without one of them. Insurance companies will insure gins and barns where the Talbott Engines and Spark Arresters are used at same rate as charged for water or horse-power.

Send for Illustrated circulars and price list.

Lithia Water.

THE BUFFALO LITHIA SPRINGS,

MECKLENBURG COUNTY, VIRGINIA.

THE GREAT TONIC AND ALTERATIVE WATERS OF THE AMERICAN CONTINENT.

BUFFALO LITHIA SPRING NO. 3.

The most Valuable and Powerful Tonic Waters of Virginia, and, with one exception, the most Valuable Tonic Water of the United States.

ANALYSIS of this Spring, made by Prof. Wm. P. Tonry, of the Maryland Institute, Baltimore, March 17, 1877: Results expressed in grains per Imperial gallon, shows it to contain 3,774 grains of the Carbonate of Iron, which is recognized by all medical men as incomparably the most potent and valuable form in which iron can be used as a Tonic. A comparison of this analysis with that of other chalybeate waters of the American Continent shows that the Buffalo Lithia Spring No. 3 contains a larger percentage of CARBONATE OF IRON than any other Mineral Water in Virginia, and, with one exception, a larger percentage than any other Mineral Water in the United States. Between this water and chalybeate waters generally there is one important difference. Chalybeate waters, as a general rule, are ASTRINGENT. The water of Spring No. 3 is APERIENT, rendered so by the Carbonate of Potash.

With this powerful BLOOD TONIC, in conjunction with the famous Buffalo Lithia Springs No. 2 (which contains a larger percentage of the Bi-carbonate of Lithia than any known Mineral Water,) one of the most powerful alterative waters of the world, and to which is attributed by many eminent medical men a peculiar power as "a Nerve Tonic," it would seem to be a self-evident proposition that these Springs offer inducements to those in search of health, found nowhere else upon the American Continent.

Naughty Paragraphers that They Are.

Baltimore American.

Senator Conkling isn't the sort of a man to stand being called an Adonis without proving it.

Courier Journal.

This "Linck-ed sweetness long drawn out"
Smelled first of German sour-kraut,
But now reveals without a doubt
That Roscoe, odoriferous pink,
Is really the "missing Linck."

Baltimore Gazette.

Ex-Governor Sprague is evidently a drinking man, as he has a right to be under the circumstances, but he knows how to hunt for the missing Linck.

Boston Post.

It looks as though the German-music teacher was merely a connecting Linck between ex-Senator Sprague and the ineffable statesman from Syracuse.

New Haven Register.

Perhaps Conkling will suggest Governor Sprague as minister to England, or the "German music teacher," which was very likely a missing Linck-in the recent trouble.

Courier Journal.

To the citizens on the frontier—Look out, there—get out of the way! Hail, the Conkling hero comes!

Boston Globe.

It may be shown later that Mr. Conkling was not at Narragansett Pier, that Mrs. Sprague never had a German teacher, and that William Sprague never was married anyway.

Washington Post.

Hasn't that German tutor been confounded with the senatorial tooter in some way?

We probably never will get the true account of the Sprague-Conkling affair until George Alfred Townsend and Eli Perkins effect a literary copartnership and write it up together.

Louisville Courier Journal.

There is a land of pure delight,
Where shot-guns never grow!
Where umbrellas e'er win the fight,
And milk and crackers flow.

Chicago Times.

Ex-Senator Sprague evidently holds that German is not the language of love.

Love, to a certain extent, levels ranks and distinctions, properly enough; and when it causes Roscoe Conkling to masquerade as a German music-teacher it over does the thing.

Courier Journal.

Prof. Conkling says that it was the "greatest effort of his life" to keep from demolishing Sprague with his umbrella when that person called him a son of a something-or-other.

Springfield Republican.

Governor Sprague went gunning the other day for male intruders upon his midsummer domesticity and there promises to be a grave historical doubt as to how many of the enemy he encountered. Governor Sprague is not a man to be trifled with, however it may be with Mrs. Sprague.

Courier Journal.

Conkling is a cowardly brute; cowardly in politics; cowardly on the stump; cowardly on the floor of the Senate. Behold your God, stalwarts, with blanched face, trembling lips, quivering legs, sneaking like a whipped dog by night out of Providence, with a shotgun pointed at his sleek carcass!

Chicago Times.

The lady in the case is, of course, an Ohio man.

"She Stoops to Conquering" will shortly be produced by Mrs. Sprague's parlor dramatic company.

The Senator from New York retires from the presidential canvass at the point of Mr. Sprague's shot-gun.

There was no use trying to disguise the New York Senator as a German professor or a French fiddler. His Hyperion lock would assert itself. The turkey gobbler strut would not sink into a sober pace. Sprague wasn't going to waste ammunition on French fiddlers when live Senators were around.

No Good Preaching.

No man can do a good job of work, preach a good sermon, try a law suit well, doctor a patient, or write a good article when he feels miserable and dull, with sluggish brain and unsteady nerves, and none should make the attempt in such a condition when it can be so easily and cheaply removed by a little Hop Bitters. See other column.

Cuticura

REMEDIES

Infallibly Cure all Skin and Scalp Diseases, Scaly Eruptions, Itchings, and Irritations

The testimonials of permanent cures of Skin and Scalp Diseases which have been the torture of a lifetime by the Cuticura Remedies, are more wonderful than any methods or remedies known to the medical profession.

Cuticura Resolvent, a powerful Blood Purifier, is the only purifying agent which finds its way into the circulating fluid and thence through the oil and sweat glands to the surface of the skin, thus destroying the poisonous elements with which these vessels have been daily charged.

Cuticura, The Great Skin Cure, applied externally, arrests all unnatural or morbid growth which cover the surface of the diseased glands and tubes with Scaly, Itching, and Irritating Humors, speedily it removes them leaving the pores open, healthy, and free from diseased particles of matter.

Thus Internally and externally do these great remedies act in conjunction, performing cures that have astonished the most noted physicians of the day.

Salt Rheum for 30 Years

On the Head, Face, and Greater Parts of the Body, Cured.

Messrs. Weeks & Potter: Gentlemen, I have been a great sufferer with salt Rheum for 30 years, commencing in my head and face and extending over the greater part of my body. I have taken gallons of medicines for the blood of different kinds and tried good physicians, all of which did me no good, and I came to the conclusion that I could not be cured. But a friend called my attention to an article in the Union on skin diseases, and I got a box of Cuticura. The first application was a great relief and the third took the scales all off, and I felt like a new man. I have used three 50-cent boxes and my skin is smooth and I consider myself entirely cured. Hoping that this may be seen by some one afflicted as I have been (if there is any) is my earnest wish. And I cheerfully recommend it to all persons afflicted with like diseases. Yours truly,
B. WILSON LORD.

Agawam, Mass., Sept. 9, 1878.

The Cuticura Soap should be used for cleansing all diseased surfaces, as most soaps are injurious to the skin.

LEPROSY.

A Modern Miracle. Astonishing Results from the use of Cuticura.

Messrs. Weeks & Potter: Gentlemen.—We have a case of Leprosy in our poorhouse which is being cured by your Cuticura remedies The county had employed all of our doctors and had sent to New York for advice, but to no avail.

The patient commenced using the Cuticura and immediately began getting better. He had been confined to his bed for two and one half years. Had not had his clothes on during this time. Last week he dressed for the first time.

When he walked, there would at least one quart of scales come off of him.

This happened every day.

We think it is a wonderful cure.

We do not think he is cured, but he is in a fair way to be cured to say the least.

Yours truly,
DUNNING BROTHERS,
Druggists and Bookellers.

Allegan, Mich., Feb. 11, 1879.

Note.—Messrs. Dunning Brothers are thoroughly reliable gentlemen, and were unknown to us prior to the receipt of this letter. We firmly believe this Cuticura will permanently cure this very severe case of Leprosy, as it has done many others.

Prepared by Weeks & Potter, Chemists and Druggists, 360 Washington Street, Boston, Mass., and for sale by all Druggists and Dealers. Price of Cuticura, small boxes, 50 cents; large boxes containing two and one half times the quantity of small, $1. Resolvent, $1 per bottle. Cuticura Soap, 25 cents per cake; by mail, 30 cents; 3 cakes, 75 cents.

Approved.

A school history should be reliable, impartial and interesting, in order to meet the requirements of the school room. Many of the most prominent teachers and other intelligent men of the State, after careful examination, have given abundant testimony that "Moore's School History of North Carolina" is "reliable, impartial and interesting," and well worthy a place in every school in North Carolina.

WASHINGTON'S HATCHET.

The Man Who Invented it and Set it Agoing.

James Parton in the Magazine of American History.

Toward the close of the last century an eccentric bookseller, Weems by name, used to ride about in the Southern States with an assortment of literature in his little wagon and a fiddle under the seat. He sold in the day time from house to house and from county to county, and in the evening, when he put up for the night at some plantation house, he was ready with his fiddle either to amuse the family or to go into the negro quarter and strike up a tune for the servants to dance to. He seems to have been a good-natured, easy-going man, with a talent for telling stories, a talent which makes almost any man welcome almost anywhere. I have called this man a book-peddler, but that was by no means the title he gave himself. If he had such a thing as a card about him, it would have borne the words Rev. Mason Lock Weems. Among the polite readers of this periodical, I presume there are many who have never so much as heard the name of this singular genius. I continually meet well informed people who know nothing of him, and who gaze with incredulity when they are told that he was not only a voluminous author, but one of the most influential that ever lived in the United States. Take one remarkable instance: It was Weem's "Life of Washington" that assisted to call forth the latent mind of Abraham Lincoln, when he was a ragged, ignorant, barefooted boy of the frontier, fourteen years of age. He borrowed the fascinating little book from a neighbor, and as often as he could snatch a few minutes he read it with avidity, as hundreds of thousands of boys had done before him, and as thousands are now doing.

When he began his "Life of Washington" he evidently resolved to give his readers an abundant supply of such anecdotes. He said the people had heard enough of Washington, "the hero, the demigod, the sunbeam in council, and the storm in war"; he meant to present to his countrymen Washington the dutiful son, the affectionate brother, the cheerful schoolboy, the neat draughtsman, the widow's husband, the poor man's friend. For this he had two qualifications: A style of considerable force and an absolute insensibility to the claims of truth, to which we may add the artifices of the practiced story-teller. The fiction of the hatchet and the cherry-tree is decorated with details equally absurd; but they were such as gave pleasure to the simple childhood of past generations. The comic paragrapnist has now appeared in the world, and this story, once so edifying, has fallen before him as an easy prey. It was the peddler Weems, nevertheless, who created the traditional Washington, "the sunbeam in council, and the storm in war"; Washington, the greatest of the great, in whose overpowering presence no mortal could stand unabashed; Washington, whose sublime serenity nothing was ever known to disturb, one of those majestic commanders who, in no stress of circumstances, could ever use a "big, big D!" The lying little book had the more weight with rustic readers of the earlier time from a fiction which the author boldly placed upon his title-page, where he styles himself "M. L. Weems, formerly rector of Mount Vernon parish." It may be that the term rector was not very accurately defined in old Virginia, but at a later day, as remarked above, the Bishop of Virginia regarded this claim to the rectorship as something ridiculous. "His name," adds Bishop Meade, "never appears on the journals of any of our conventions." If Weems ever officiated at Mount Vernon, it must have been because there was no other clergyman to perform the duty.

Fatal Accident.

New Berne Democrat, 16th

From a postal card just received from Mr. W. T. Caho, of Pamlico, we learn the very sad intelligence that Mr. F. E. Alfred, former sheriff of that county, was thrown from his buggy on Thursday, by his horse running away, and his injuries received were of so serious a nature as to result in death at about 6 o'clock Friday morning.

Mr. Alfred was one of the most influential, as well as one of the most useful citizens in Pamlico, and his death will be universally regretted.

BOUND TO GET OUT.

An Excited Citizen of Memphis Seeking a Way of Escape.

Avalanche.

All was peace in the office of President Porter yesterday evening. The labors of the day were over, and an air of gentle repose pervaded the whole apartments. The urbane Bigley had hoisted his eye-glasses, and was sitting in the depths of a luxurious arm-chair, with his feet perched upon the table, reading the exciting brevities in the Ledger. The sardonic McCloy was combing his curling locks before the mirror. The spell of silence was broken by the entrance of a dishevelled citizen, evidently laboring under mental excitement. He leaned over the railing and addressed the urbane Bigley:

"Cap'n, I want ter get out o' here."

"Out of where?" asked the U. B., with courteous interest.

"Why, out of Memphis. Things is gittin hot, you see; and I never had it."

"Good idea; it's much healthier outside. Besides, rations are playing out, and we won't be able to entertain in our usual style much longer."

"That's what they tell me; but how'm I to git out? The railroads is all shut down, and the boats air got a howitzer mounted on the biler deck to keep off passengers from Memphis."

"Don't know. I'm sure; just do as you think best."

"Take the dirt-road and surround Bartlett. You may capture a train there," suggested the S. McC.

"But how am I to git to Bartlett? They say the roads air all picketed, and the country fellers air tolerably reck less 'bout what they shoot at. To be sure, I might take my gun along and lay out a few, but that wouldn't git me a through ticket to Cincinnaty."

"You might get a free ride to Nashville—under guard—if you shot straight," remarked McCloy, with sarcasm.

"But what if I missed?" queried the dishevelled citizen.

"In that case you wouldn't need anything but a burial certificate, and it would be furnished you free gratis."

The citizen mused a moment, and then all at once a bright thought irradiated his face like sunlight on a tin-pan.

"Don't you think a fellow could strike the railroad 'bout fifteen miles out and bribe the conductor to let him git abroad? How much d'ye think it would cost?"

"Conldn't say," replied Bigley.

McCloy: What's the market price of a conductor's virtue?"

"So little of it going that it ain't quoted any more."

"Well, it's all right for you fellers to make game because you've had it, and air solid; but my mind's made up; I'm goin'. It's better to be shot by a kuwenteen picket than to have sporads huntin' you up at the dead hour o' midnight. So long." And with that the rear of his duster flitted out at the door, and he went forth on his perilous adventure.

The Death Rate of

Our country is getting to be fearfully alarming, the average of life being lessened every year, without any reasonable cause, death resulting generally from the most insignificant organ. At this season of the year especially, a cold is such a common thing that in the hurry of every day life we are apt to overlook the dangers attending it and often find too late that a fever or lung trouble has already set in. Thousands lose their lives in this way every winter, while had Boschee's German Syrup been taken, a cure would have resulted, and a large bill from a doctor been avoided. For all diseases of the throat and lungs, Boschee's German Syrup has proved itself to be the greatest discovery of its kind in medicine. Every Druggist in this country will tell you of its wonderful effect. Over 950,000 bottles sold last year without a single failure known. d&wtf.

BOVINE, MISSISSIPPI, April 22, 1879.—The following correspondence will explain itself: A. WADDILL, Esq., LYNCHBURG, VA.—Dear Sir: Observing a certificate from you in reference to the "Iron and Alum Mass," of the Seven Springs, in Washington county, Va., in relation to its efficacy for Liver Diseases, would you have the kindness to inform me whether you used the "Mass" or the "Water;" also, a description of the symptoms and such other information as you may deem pertinent. I am a long-time sufferer with Liver Complaint, and naturally feel very anxious on the subject of a remedy that will afford me even temporary relief. Your early reply will greatly oblige, very respectfully,
WILLIAM BARR.

LYNCHBURG, Va., May 12, 1879.—WM. BARR, Esq., Bovine, Mississippi—Dear Sir: Your inquiry in regard to the "Liver case" which was effectually cured in my family from using the "Seven Springs Mass," is before me. The case referred to in my certificate was that of my wife's sister, who is now in her 80th year, and has been a member of my family for the last 27 years. She had been afflicted with Liver Disease for 30 years, sometimes almost dying with pains in the back, breast, and heaviness of the chest, heart-burns (intensely), sick stomach, vomiting, &c. I procured a few bottles of the "Mass" for her, and very soon after she began the use of it, her health commenced to get better, and she continued steadily to improve, and at this writing, so old, seemingly in as good health as a person who had never been afflicted with these diseases. She attributes her cure entirely to the efficacy of the "Seven Springs Mass." I regard it one of the greatest family medicines we have access to, not only for such diseases as above indicated, but for various other complaints for which it is recommended. Hoping these answers satisfactory, I am, very truly, A. WADDILL, Proprietor Lynchburg News.

Not Surprised.

When we consider the little attention paid to the laws of health, we are not surprised at the indifference manifested in relation to the purity of our daily food. If all articles were like Dr. Price's Cream Baking Powder, this indifference might answer; their perfect wholesomeness would insure us against all evil consequences.

Cured of Drinking.

"A young friend of mine was cured of an insatiable thirst for Liquor, which had so prostrated him that he was unable to do any business. He was entirely cured by the use of Hop Bitters. It allayed all that burning thirst; took away the appetite for liquor; made his nerves steady, and he has remained a sober and steady man for more than two years, and has no desire to return to his cups; I know of a number of others that have been cured of drinking by it."—From a leading R. Writes: * * * I cheerfully state that I have tested the virtues and efficiency of Colden's Liebig Liquid Extract of Beef in my private practice in cases of general debility, weakness, depression, dyspepsia, loss of appetite and nervous afflictions, when medicine had proven more than useless. I have found it the best remedy I ever used in Chronic Alcoholism, when the stomach is always irritable and food required to nourish. Sold by all Leading Druggists.
